

**How do you interpret the hardships of life?***

Believers are individuals and communities who stand out among others because they create their own plans for progress wherever they are. No matter the circumstances, they adjust their plans for progress and success according to the situation and continue their path with full effort. In such circumstances, there are also obstacles to progress—sometimes at home, sometimes outside, sometimes internal, and sometimes external. The important thing is that individuals and communities dedicated to progress do not abandon the path of success and continue to move forward with strength.

Zurara reported from Abu Abdullah (Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq) (peace be upon him) who said: "The believer is not spared from one of three things, and sometimes all three may come upon him: either someone in his home who shuts the door on him and causes him harm, or a neighbor who harms him, or something in his path or needs that causes him harm. And if a believer were on the peak of a mountain, God would send a devil upon him; but He would make his faith a companion for him, so that he would not feel lonely or afraid of anyone."

**Correcting Mistakes***

Another characteristic of a successful life is the ability to correct mistakes. Individuals and communities on the path to progress often find their errors more visible in this worldly life, and these have a significant impact on their attainment of the peak of success. For this reason, they face difficulties...
